Training School Contract To Be Awarded; Plans Underway For $20 Million Campus

President Hammond announced last week that $5 million contract for construction of the McKay Campus school will be awarded in mid-January. This is only part of the $20 million to be spent on the new FSC campus.

The overall undertaking will bring about not only construction of the 630-foot-long combined Elementary and Junior High to be known as McKay Campus School, on land in the area between North Street and Rindge Road at McKay Park, but construction of a 400-bed women's dormitory of approximately eight stories in height, costing another estimated $5 million.

Other plans call for a new Fine and Industrial Arts Building, for which $250,000 in planning funds has been allocated, in addition to the Central Heating Plant at the college and expansion of the present dining hall to double the present seating capacity and extending over North Street, estimated at $1,250,000.

In addition, plans are on the drawing board for expansion of the athletic field facilities as well as a Student Union building and Library, estimated to cost another $8 million.

The McKay Campus School will be ultra-modern in all aspects and will feature the latest in teaching and educational aids. It will contain an instructional material center, electronically equipped on one floor with an open mezzanine as well as faculty work areas, a kindergarten section, learning labs, language labs for group and individual listening and outstanding science and vocational areas.

Special observation rooms will be available and may be used for small seminars. There will be communications for listening and for teaching between the observation and classrooms with inter-connecting, inter-communication system so persons may hear as well as see what is going on. Another feature will be installation of one-way glass for this particular type of work. It will also feature a TV studio and TV in each classroom.

The building will be of brick construction ranging from two to three stories in height. The Junior High section will be about 150 feet square and the Elementary section 250-by-72 feet with a core in the center.

There will be in addition, a large cafeteria, kitchen, auditorium and sizable gymnasium. The overall building will have 180,000 square feet of floor space.

Filed sub-bids are due to be opened at the Bureau of Building Construction in Boston on Monday, Dec. 30 at 12 noon and the general contract bids will be opened on Jan. 7 at 2 p.m. in Boston. Contract award is expected by mid-January with land clearance work slated during the winter months.

Pres. Hammond said that a total of $7½ million has already been funded out of the 20 million expansion program. Funds are available for the 400-bed women's dormitory, to be constructed on the present parking lot near the 11-story, 360-bed women's dormitory on North Street. The dormitory construction will be self-amortized. It is expected to cost about $2 million and will be eight stories tall.

The Fine and Industrial Arts Building, presently on the drawing boards for planning funds, is estimated to cost $5 million and will be located at the rear of the present college auditorium. The sum of $250,000 has already been funded for expansion of the central heating plant.

Expansion of the athletic facilities is estimated at $250,000 while the Library and Student Union is estimated at $8 million.

The McKay school will be the longest of any of the buildings

Holiday Concert By FSC Groups

Hold everything! You're not really planning to go home without attending our fabulous Christmas Concert, are you! Well, that's better!

All the enthusiasm which contributed to last year's memorable presentations of Amahl and the Night Visitors prevails once more as our music department prepares to bring you an enjoyable evening of seasonal music. Tomorrow night (Thursday, Dec. 12) at 8:00 p.m. in Weston Auditorium, you will hear performances by the State College Glee Club, the recently formed College Choir, and the bigger-and-better-than-ever College Band. In addition, Miss Linda Kyle of the faculty will be featured soloist at the organ.

The program is under the direction of Mr. Donald M. Adams and Mr. Frank C. Patterson, with with accompaniment provided by Miss Kyle and Beth Barney, Class of 1971. A variety of choral music will be presented, including among others The Cherry Tree Legend, 'Twas the Night Before Christmas, and selections from Handel's Messiah. Band arrangements will feature Sarabande and March by Handel - Wallace, a Christmas Medley arranged by Ades, and Christmas Spirituals arranged by Isaac.

Admission is a strong pair of hands for applauding. Hope you will join us!

UMOC

Neasylons win UMOC with a total of 6872 votes in a close battle with the Esoteric's.

Total proceeds amounted to $232.15.

The UMOC committee would like to thank all candidates and their supporting organization for making this years UMOC a great success.

Philodemic Society

On October 19, the Philodemic Society welcomed 13 new sisters into the club. The new sisters are Maureen Delahey, Donna Duphiney, Corinne Corso, Nancy Bartolucci, Jean Savinen, Linda Blake, Debbie Sarson, Kathy Richards, Pat Mahar, Barbara Hart, Peg Whitters, Debbie Marhefka, and Jane Stevenson. Immediately plans were made for the Rose Formal which was held on November 16th at the Tavern Inn in Gloucester.

Last year's championship volleyball team, with the help of the new sisters, again took the championship with an impressive 7-0 record.

Presently plans are underway for a Christmas Party at Pinecrest Nursing Home. A Christmas tree bearing stockings for each sister, club sponsors Miss Peterson and Mrs. Freedman, and all other social clubs has been set up in the lobby of Thompson Hall. On December 12th and 13th a chimney will be set up and candy canes will be handed out.

Fitchburg Industries To Sponsor Career Opportunities Day Dec. 30

If you're a senior in college you have a career in mind — or do you?

Are you looking for some answers?

We have a suggestion on where you can find those answers during your Christmas vacation.

The Greater Fitchburg Chamber of Commerce, with its counterparts in Leominster and Gardner, will hold a Career Opportunity Conference on December 30 at Fitchburg State College from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The men with the answers will be there — from places like General Electric, Weyerhaeuser, Foster Grant, Simplex, Thayer, Simonds Saw & Steel, Ilco Corp., Fitchburg Paper Co., and many others.

The idea is this: The day-long meeting affords an opportunity for industry to gather in one place and meet college seniors in the same one place; talk to them; tell them about the advantages of their companies and hear from the college seniors their ideas on what they foresee in employment.

What are the advantages? For one thing, these are all first-class employers — located in your own home area. They're interested in employing home-grown people; interested in new ideas.

If you're expecting to graduate in June of 1969, and the future has an immediacy about it for you, why not get a first-hand look — right from the people who know?

If you're a parent of one of these young men or women planning to graduate, now is the time to alert the young people to this unusual opportunity.

Incidentally, the conference is being operated at no cost to the student. You will be guest of the sponsors at a lunch.

You might even bring your date along. Maybe she has some ideas too.

James H. Parsons, ILCO Corp. Chairman for the Conference, Judith Perla; Judith Green, Srs. at FSC; and William A. Klein of Foster-Grant Co.

So I've Heard . . .

Where Has All The Money Gone

Now we know. Where our athletic fee has gone, that is. On page 6 of this week's KV is a detailed account of the Athletic Council's expenditures.

After reading over the list which was drawn up at a meeting last month, students should be satisfied to see that their money is being wisely spent.

The comparison of the state colleges should point out that we at FSC are in a better position financially than students at other colleges. Some colleges charge as much as $25 for their athletic fee. And we complained about $15.

The Athletic Council should be congratulated on the fine work they did drawing up the budget. It is concise and allows each student to see exactly where his $15 has gone. Now we all know.

PAX

Christmas does not mean stockings and Santa to most of us anymore. But there is one aspect of Christmas that still involves each of us. That is peace.

Angels brought tidings of peace and joy to the shepherds according to tradition. However, the peace for which we strive is not this kind, heralded by angels.

Our peace is a universal peace of spirit. Certainly we hope for world peace among nations. However, before this type of peace can be achieved, it is necessary for us to attain an inner peace.

This inner peace is found through self-knowledge and understanding. During this season, we should attempt to find this peace. Personal peace expands into understanding between individuals and finally into peace between nations.

Not In Spirit

Gripe, gripe, gripe. Some people never stop. We finally find out where our athletic fee has gone. Now, there are complaints about the regular SGA appropriations.

Some students want to know why the Financial Committee decided to drop certain clubs from the list of subsidies. A very good question.

Perhaps it could be that these clubs don't represent the whole college. But no, each club is open to anyone who wants to join. You don't have to be a French major to belong to the French Club, or a member of the NRA to join the Rifle and Pistol Club. What could the problem be?

Maybe the clubs do not represent the college to the community and the rest of the free world. However, who worries about that? After all, it is OUR money and not the community's.

Whatever the problem, don't think about it now. During the Christmas season, we should not worry about trivia. Have a good vacation and bring it up in the New Year.

Getting There

I was reading quiet, content. Just getting into the story, waiting for it to envelope me. Harry was in the kitchen eating. Ralph was on his way up the stairs. We could hear his advancing, stomping steps from the first floor. "Storm warnings!" he yelled as he opened the door and entered.

From the kitchen, "Great!" It was a pagan yell of ecstasy and satisfaction that comes only at beautiful moments, such as when the rain falls after the rain dance or you live after having scratched your little finger with your poison dart. Harry rushed from the kitchen.

"What's the temperature?"

"Twenty-nine degrees."

"Cloudy?"

"Like you read about."

"What's the forecast?" Harry asked. He was sitting on the arm of my chair forcing down a peanut butter and marshmallow sandwich. I was reading - quiet, content. Still waiting to get into the story.

"Heavy snow starting any minute."

"You coming with us?" Harry asked me.

"No, I said, still waiting for the story to envelope me.

"You didn't even ask where we're going" Ralph said disdainfully.

"I know where you're going," I said.

"You're going to buy a bottle of brandy and go walking. You're walking over Rindge Road, down the John Fitch Highway and up Pearl Hill Road. Then come back down the hill and home to make popcorn and hot chocolate. Right? That's all you've talked about since you saw Doctor Zhivago. I've got to read."

Harry went to his room." What price carries experience," he said as he left.

II

They sat before the window, sullen, dejected. Harry sat in his underwear, his scarf around his neck, his boots laced and ready. He took his gloves off and reached for the popcorn.

"I thought you said it would snow right away?"

"It was supposed to. It will.

"Ya sure," Harry said hurt, "but you've already finished the brandy and the popcorn's stale. And beside that I've got a rash from this scarf."

"Wait!" Ralph yelled, "a flake, I saw one!" They jumped forward their noses against the cold pane. They neither moved nor breathed, but watched intently.

"There's one over there by Patterson's front porch," Harry whispered. "Did ya see it."

"Yes," Ralph scarcely breathed.

"There's another there. See it?"

"No," I was watching that one over there.

"Look at all those flakes!"

III

I sat reading, just getting into the story, waiting for it to envelope me. Harry sat on the arm of my chair forcing down a peanut butter and marshmallow sandwich. Ralph lay prostrate in front of the heater.

"Not bad," I said. "You lasted five minutes. Good start. Ten minutes next time?"

"You try it," Harry challenged between bites.

"Ya, you try it," Ralph echoed from the heater. "See how long you last in that ungerdely cold with snow whipping your face and soaking your boots. Six inches of snow on the road . . ."

"Eight inches," Harry said.

I marked the page, grabbed my gloves and coat and started to the door.

"Where are you going?"

"Walking," I said. Its stopped snowing and the plow just went by.

"Get some popcorn on the way back," Harry yelled as I closed the door.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

This letter is in reference to a recent editorial published in the November 13, 1968 issue of the Kampus Vue, concerning the library. In this editorial, suggestions were made on ways to keep the library open more often for the students. Quoting from the paper: "Most of the social clubs on campus pledge some form of service to the college. Wouldn't it be possible for these groups to volunteer their services to staff the library? It would only involve a few hours a week for which each club would be responsible." On behalf of the To Kalon Society, I would like to inquire to whether any action has been taken on this suggestion.

At a recent meeting of our club, we voted that we would like to volunteer, along with the other clubs, to staff the library on the weekends. If the other clubs have shown any interest, would you please inform us so that we can set up a meeting to see if this suggestion can be carried through.

Kathy McLaughlin
Vice-President
To Kalon Society

Dear Editor:

I am upset! By what you may ask? The second, third, and fourth pages of the KV is my answer. Why? You might say. Answer: The fantastic intellectual articles that appear on those pages. Whom do they appeal to and to how many?

The front page tells what is happening on campus, but there must be more than that. The letters are important, but why so many? The editorials are good, but why so many? You and your staff print good and worthwhile information. But what about the "Banana" or "So I've Heard" or the other useless bits of information that are printed. I ask again, Isn't there more news? For instance, what about club news or MTB or WAA events? Something is happening every night in the gym, but very little is printed about it. The sports page had one column and the rest of it was ads this week - why? The latter half of the soccer season was reported but never printed as it should have been - why? "So I've Heard" that events are reported but never printed - why?

Paul Gagliarducci, '70

Dear Editor:

The enclosed article, which appeared a few weeks ago in the Christian Science Monitor, should be pertinent and of interest to the FSC campus.

"While student demonstrations get most of the headlines, student councils are also making themselves heard in quieter ways.

"In many high schools and colleges, the once-docile councils are demanding a greater say in how the schools are run. They are no longer satisfied with "sitting in" privileges at faculty meetings, but are often demanding "speaking out" and voting privileges.

"In some cases, they have won much greater voices in policymaking.

"The reasons are much the same as those behind student demonstrations. For one, students allege that schools have generally failed to keep up with the wider latitude of personal freedoms which many students have already won at home. For another, in some cases teaching is uninspired and courses are not pertinent to the times."

Although I realize that the paper is understaffed and overworked (I extend my sympathy while challenging other students to join in improving the Kampus Vue and FSC, transforming gripes into action), I would like to see articles on the following neglected areas: the Logos Honor Society, Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges (the Sentinel carried an article), efforts to establish a chapter of Phi Alpha Theta (national history honor society) on campus, and more information on the activities of a most important functioning Student Council (in addition to Peggy Crawford's efforts). I'm certain that someone within these group would be willing to lend assistance.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
L. H. '69

EDITORS NOTE:

Dear L.H. and Mr. Gagliarducci: As KV editor, I would like to reply to your letters. It is difficult for a VERY few students to adequately cover all news on campus. It can only be hoped that students in different organizations will submit news of their own groups for publication.

L.H., you could encourage those in the organizations you mention to contribute material. If the secretaries of the clubs do not comply, you could perhaps write something yourself.

Mr. Gagliarducci, you seem upset to say the least. I have two suggestions for you. If you don't like pages 2, 3 and 4, don't read them. Or you could write something yourself. As for the soccer games, we print almost everything that is submitted. I say almost, since occasionally we haven't quite enough room for everything. However, if the story is important or not dated, everything is printed eventually. Had the soccer games been reported, they certainly would have appeared.

AIC Student Proposes Gov't Day

An American International College senior from Darin, Conn., William M. Burke, has launched a Massachusetts Inter-collegiate Government Day which will be held in the State House March 21, 1969. The program has received the enthusiastic endorsement of Senate President Maurice A. Donohue of Holyoke and House Speaker Robert H. Quinn of Dorchester as well as the Mass. Department of Education.

Burke of 8 Jennifer Rd., Darien, Conn., is presently forming an 11-member standing committee representing state-supported and private colleges, community and junior colleges throughout the Bay State. This organizational committee, along with faculty advisors, will help plan the Boston session. There are 115 degree-granting institutions in Massachusetts eligible to take part in the collegiate venture into state government.

The president of AIC's Student Government, Burke, noted that neighboring Connecticut and such states as North Carolina and California, hold inter-collegiate government days, but this is believed to be the first Continued on Page 8

Neasylons

On December 11, the Neasylon Society will sponsor a Christmas Puppet Show for the primary grades of the Dillon and Edgerly schools. The program will be performed from 1:30 to 2:30 by the Toy Cupboard Theatre of South Lancaster, Mass. under the direction of Hebert H. Hosmer. If you know of any child in the area who would like to come feel free to invite him.

The Neasylons would like to thank Miss Lillian Tater for her able assistance in planning this program.

PiSigma Upsilon

The brothers of Pi Sigma Upsilon conducted their second annual canned food drive for the needy families of Fitchburg the week of Nov. 18th.

Canned goods were obtained from collection boxes located in Thompson and Science lobbies and from the Fitchburg area. The city was divided into four major areas and the Fraternities' four basketball teams solicited canned goods from the residents. The Green II team gathered the most canned goods and won the competition among the teams. The can goods were given to the Salvation Army who in turn distributed them to needy families in the Fitchburg area for Thanksgiving.

The brothers wish to thank all those who contributed to the drive and helped make it the success it was. The members of the committee were chairman Greg Gill, Bob Goss, Lee Benson, and Gerry Francis.

According to initial plans, Burke said the collegiate representatives, at least one, possibly two, from all 115 institutions, will arrive in Boston Thursday, March 20. The first day will be spent in committee meetings. Massachusetts Intercollegiate Government Day will be held Friday, March 21, when the House and Senate will meet in joint assembly in the State House.

College students throughout Mass. will be invited and encouraged to submit bills through their collegiate representatives on any issue. "We sincerely hope to act on at least eight bills during Massachusetts Intercollegiate Government Day," Burke said, adding, "these bills will then be submitted to state legislators for continued action."

He noted, "The purpose of the two-day conference is to bring college students together to act on issues which are important and vital to Massachusetts."

The AIC senior said an attempt will be made to conduct one of the March 20 sessions in historic Faneuil Hall, "The Cradle of Liberty," scene of numerous governmental meetings during the Revolutionary and Civil Wars.

MIB NEWS

By JIM CRAIGEN

On Tuesday, December 3, MIB basketball moved into its third week of competition with the Gav Lambda forfeiting to the Blue team of Pi Sigma Upsilon.

Also, on Dec. 3, the Independents defeated the Go team of the Mohawks by a 66 to 43 score.

The next day, Wednesday, December 4, saw a full schedule of games being played. One of the first games played that night had the Eso B's defeat the Large's in a close game with a score of 30 to 28.

The Rolling Stones were defeated by the Hustlers with a 58 to 49 margin.

In another game the Green I team of Pi Sigma Upsilon defeated the Mohawk A's 29 to 21.

In NBA action that night the Independents downed the Blues 57 to 48 while in the ABA league the A's defeated Lambda 47 to 19.

In one other game played that same night the Whites defeated the CB's.

Order Your Rings Now

Monday, December 2, 1968 representatives from Josten's arrived at FSC to take orders for class rings and to answer any questions the students might have. Any member of the class of 1969 or 1970 who was unable to order his ring at that time, may now place his order in the Bookstore.

A display of the rings and a sample of the stone color can be seen at this time.
